Some of the newspapers seem to think it wonderful that so many of our millionaires were poor boys. Success in life does not depend upon the starting point. As in swimming a race it makes little difference at the end whether a man wades in or jumps in, whether he starts from a rock, a bank of sand, or a boat in the stream; so in the battle of life it is not the point of starting, but the direction of the start and the vigor and endurance and good judgment that are brought into play, that brings great re-sults.—Boston Traveler.

There are so many strangers in Aus-tin, and trade is so brisk that the average restaurant keeper, and even the waiters, are as cheeky as members of the Legislature. A stranger recently entered a restaurant on Austin Avenue and asked for some oysters. After he had eaten them, he said to the waiter:

"I feel very bad. I don't think those oysters were fresh." "Well, that's not our fault. Why didn't you come last week when they were fresh? It serves you just right,'

A SOFT ANSWER. Bill Ingersoll, who lives in Austin, and is a distant relative of the celebrated star route defender, does not believe in the truth of the Bible as a general thing, but he says there is one verse in it that is true. He was asked what verse he referred to. He said the one that said a soft answer turneth away wrath. When he lived in Illinois he knew a man by the name of Wrath, who asked a girl to marry him, but she gave him a soft answer that turned away Wrath. Bill says that he does not believe that about Jonah, or even the rib story, but he knows that a soft answer turneth away Wrath is a fact, and then he would go on to tell what sort of a looking man Wrath was, and why the girl had no use for him.— Texas Siftings.

tion in the neighboring arteries, which cuts off the supply of blood to the part. Such an obstruction is often attributed to embolism-a small particle swept from the heart to some capillary and lodged there; or to thrombosis -a larger bit (perhaps of clot) thus swept along and lodged in some artery; to a tumor pressing on an artery; to a flow of blood from a ruptured vessel already affected with degeneration.

Sometimes a feeble heart, unable to send the blood to all the capillaries of the brain, may give rise to it. It is often remotely due to prolonged intellectual efforts, strong and continued emotions, blows on the head, alcohol, or to disease of the heart, caused by acute rheumatism. Softening of the brain may be either acute or chronic. The former is fatal is the best. Nothing should be allowed tending to increase the action of the heart .- Youth's Companion. About City Clubs. A very remarkable development of club life is taking place in all the large cities of the world. In London there are over a hundred thousand registered members of clubs, and new ones are constantly being founded. They are also growing rapidly in New York city. In all our great centers of population there is a wealthy and half-idle class who patronize clubs. These are not, perhaps, an unmixed evil. They promote good-fellowship, and cultivate a sense of gentlemanly honor, which adds to the morale of men in society. While they give facilities for forming drinking habits, it is also true that they discourage excessive indulgence in spirituous drinks. A notorious drunkard cannot long retain his membership in a respectable club. But they tend, undoubtedly to wean men from their families, and to train young men in habits which unfit them for domestic life. The clubs which have a public or political function are those which are the most prosperous. The Union League Club of New York, for instance, recently held its twentieth anniversary. It was formed to cultivate a patriotic feeling while the civil war was raging. It is a very prosperous institution, yet it allows no card-playing, or any game of chance. Another New York club, the Lotos, makes a specialty of entertaining distinguished foreigners. The leading London clubs are also political, and represent the Liberal. Conservative, and Reform parties. There are some clubs in New York which ought to be broken up by the police, as their chief function seems to be to afford facilities for gambling .- Demorest's Monthly. History Rewritten. As Queen Elizabeth, attended by Sir Walter Raleigh and a retinue of gilded courtiers, was one day walking through the streets of London she came to a particular muddy spot, which she hesitated to cross. Raleigh was about to throw down his cloak before her in order that she might cross dryshod, when he reflected that it was of costly velvet lavishly ornamented with old lace, and so would infallibly be spoiled.
